

Cameleers from northern India

Cameleers from northern India and Afghanistan, usually of Muslim faith, played a critical role in the development of the colony. They were essential for voyages of exploration such as Bourke and Wills in 1861

<http://uncommonlives.naa.gov.au/contents.asp?sID=29>